News from Teknos Industry UK & Ireland

Summer 2017

Welcome to Seasoned, the Teknos newsletter for the Industrial Wood sector in the UK and Ireland.

In this edition find out what to do with your waste paint, how to get hold of our new knot inhibitor, and why UV curing is now more accessible than ever for smaller joinery businesses.

Internationally, Teknos Group has news of a major acquisition that will benefit all our joinery industry customers, including those in the UK & Ireland.

Case Study

Smaller Joinery Businesses Benefit from New UV Curing Technology

Paint and technology for UV curing are progressing rapidly allowing smaller joinery businesses a slice of the action. Burkle's UK representative MPS Machines and Lancashire based joiners Pendle Doors explain why UV curing is increasingly accessible for smaller joinery businesses.

What's new in Teknos GBI?

No Knots Here

Responding to customer demand, Teknos GBI have introduced a Knot Spot Primer. Brush onto individual knots before overcoating, for a flawless finish on your joinery. Contact your local Teknos rep for details or sales@teknos.co.uk.

Good News for Pros

Our TeknosPro range of coatings for walls, ceilings, wood and metal are now widely available to decorators in the UK and Ireland, with the addition of two new distributors.

HSP Joinery (Holman Specialist Paints) is our newest distributor in the UK. They stock a wide range of TeknosPro products including some of the more unusual ones like specialist sauna products, as well as paints, primers, lacquers, cleaning items and more. A Swindon based company they also offer products online.

Templeogue Decor in Dublin is another recent addition to our distributor network. They work with trade and retail customers, stocking a range of TeknosPro products. Templeogue are a family run business with a wealth of knowledge in the world of decorating.

Advice

Waste Paint Pointers

Storage and disposal of waste paint can be a problem but we all want to look after the environment and ensure our businesses are fulfilling their legal obligations.

With help from waste management experts CSG, we have put together a free Teknos Guide on Waste Paint Disposal.
